Girls throw colored powders at the Festival of Holi in Bangalore, India.

A Festival of Colors

Hindu people in India and all over the world celebrate Holi, or the Festival of Colors. They celebrate it on the day after the full moon in February or March. The festival celebrates the beginning of spring. It also celebrates how good is stronger than evil.[1] In the old days, people celebrated Holi for five days. Today, most people celebrate Holi for two or three days. It is a time for

[1] evil: very, very bad

Hindus to relax and have fun. During the festival, all people—rich and poor, men and women, young and old—are equal and enjoy this time together.

2 Before the festival, the streets are full of people. They are buying and selling powders of different colors such as green, red, blue, and yellow. The women make special foods to eat for the festival. On the night before Holi, the men and boys make a big fire. Families sing and dance around the fire.

3 The next morning, the fun begins. People don't work on this day. They wear their old clothes so they don't get color all over their new clothes. Then they go out into the streets. First, they throw powders of different colors at each other. Colors cover everyone from top to bottom. After that, they start to throw colored water on one another. By the end of the day, everyone is a walking rainbow[2] of color! When they get home in the evening, they wash their faces, bodies, and clothes to get the color out. Everyone is happy at the end of the day because it was so much fun!

[2] rainbow: lines of color you see in the sky when it is sunny and raining at the same time

WRITING SKILLS

The Sentence

A sentence always begins with a capital letter and ends with either a period (.), an exclamation point (!), or a question mark (?). A sentence always has a subject and a verb. Many sentences also have an object.

- The sentence order in English is subject + verb + object.

  EXAMPLE: People (subject) buy (verb) powders. (object)

- The subject of a sentence is usually a noun, a pronoun, or a noun phrase. It tells us who is doing the action and usually comes before the verb.

  EXAMPLES: People (noun) buy powders.

  They (pronoun) buy powders.

  The Hindu people (phrase with a noun) buy powders.

- The verb of a sentence tells us the action of the subject. Some verbs are one word, but other verbs are more than one word.

  EXAMPLES: People buy (verb) powders.

  People are buying (verb) powders.

  People are going to buy (verb) powders.

- The object of a sentence answers the question, What? The object can be a noun, a pronoun, or a noun phrase.

  EXAMPLES: People buy powders. (noun)

  People buy them. (pronoun)

  People buy powders of different colors. (noun phrase)

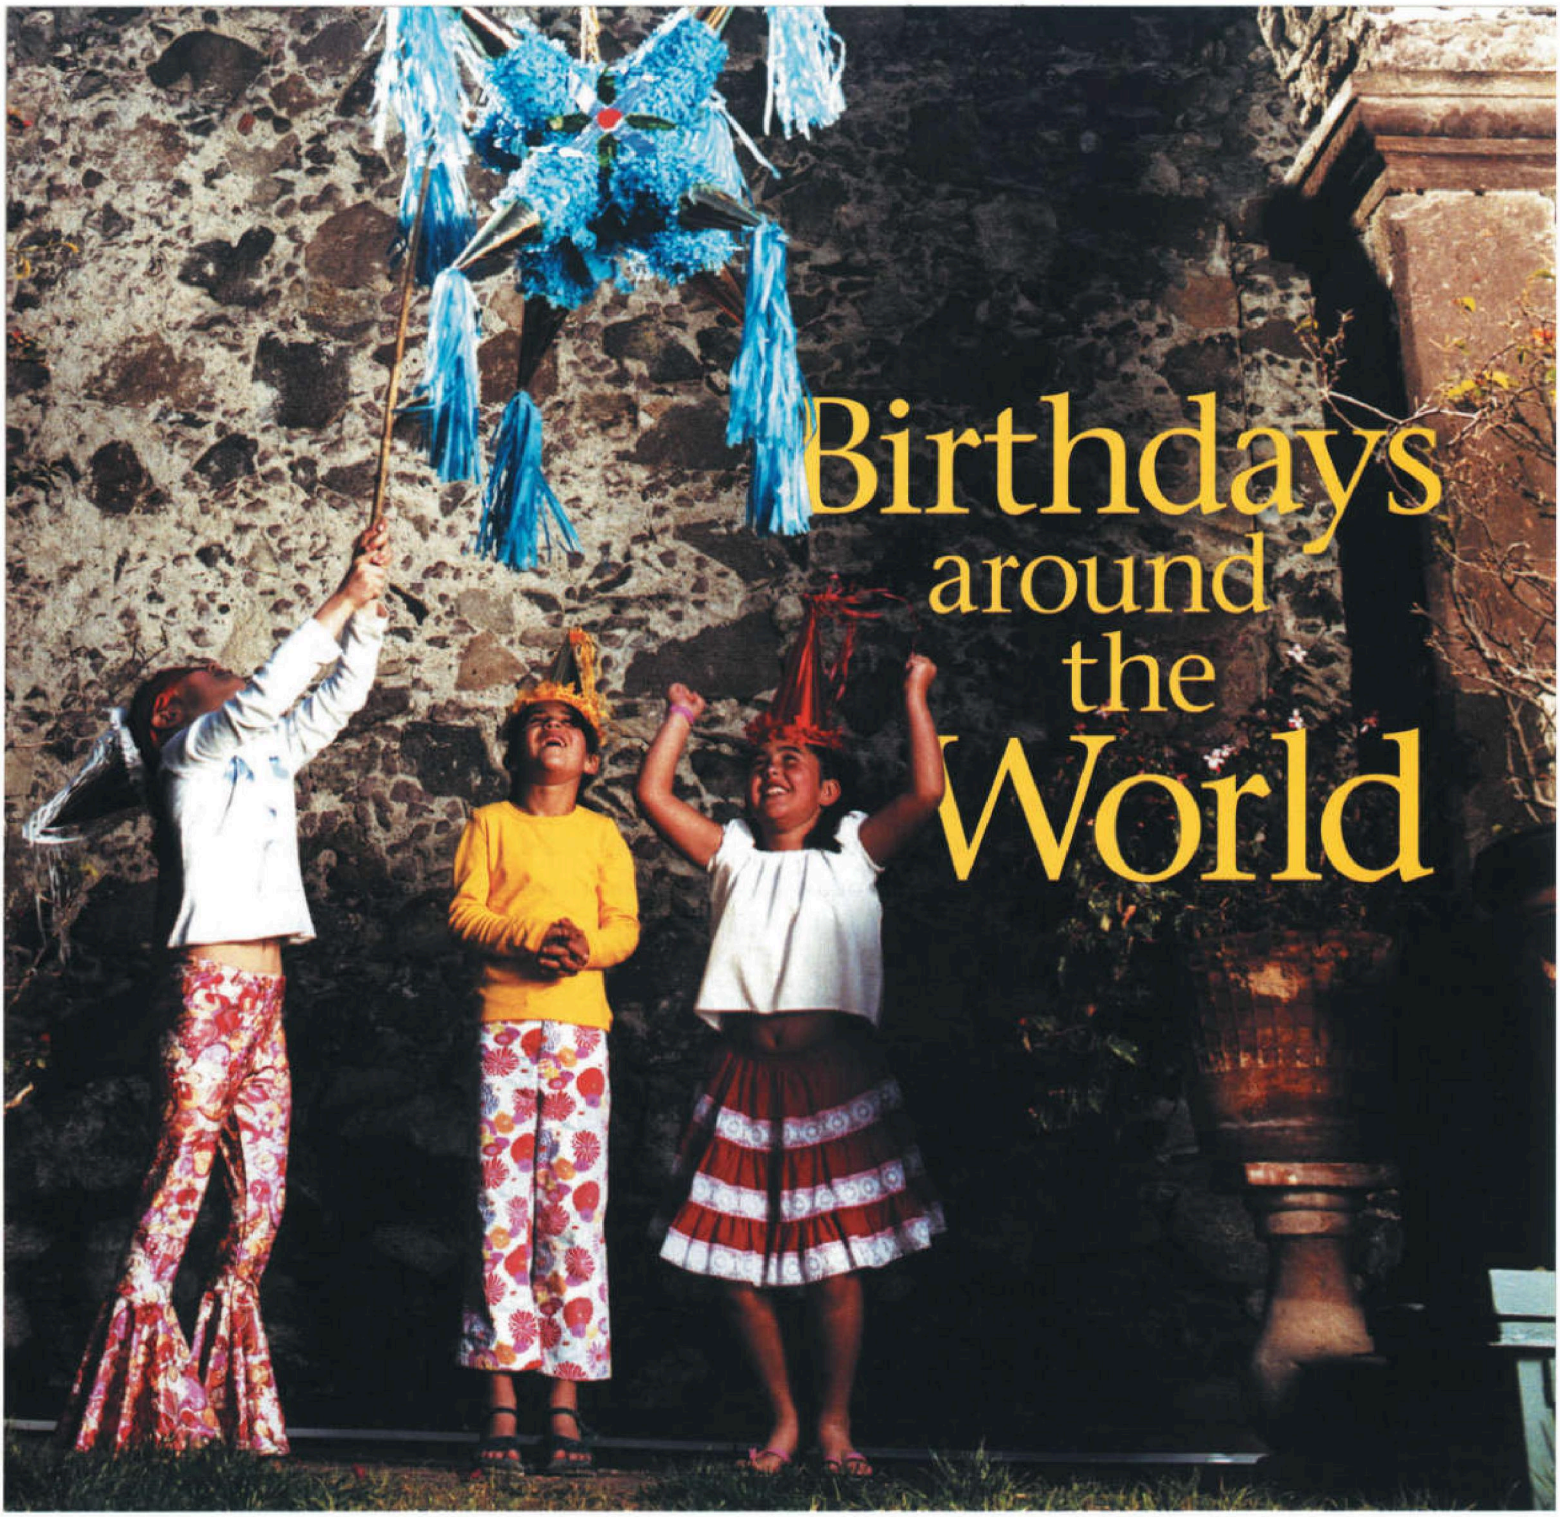
At a birthday party in Mexico, children try to get candy out of a "pinata."



Birthdays around the World

Everybody has a birthday. Many children around the world celebrate their birthdays like children in the United States. They have a birthday cake, gifts, and sometimes a birthday party. Friends and family gather around a table with a birthday cake on it. They sing "Happy Birthday to You." Two American sisters wrote this song in 1893, but people still sing this song today! The birthday cake usually has lighted candles on it, one candle for each year of the child's life. The birthday child makes a wish and then blows out all the candles. If the child blows out the candles in one breath, it is said that the wish will come true. Other countries have different customs.

2 In Norway, Denmark, and Sweden, people fly the country's flag outside their home to tell everyone that someone in the family is having a birthday. In Denmark, a parent puts gifts around a child's bed when the child is sleeping at night. When the child wakes up in the morning, the gifts will be the first thing the child sees. In Sweden and also in Finland, the birthday child gets breakfast in bed!

3 In some countries, some years are more important than others. In Holland, these are 5, 10, 15, 20, and 21. They call them "crown" years. On a crown birthday, the birthday child or young adult gets a much more important gift. The family also decorates the child's chair at the dining table with flowers, paper, and balloons. The special years in Japan are 3, 5, and 7. These are the lucky years. On November 15 every year, there is a festival called "7-5-3" when the children and their families go to a religious place. Then the family gives a party for the child and gives the child gifts. In India, because of religious reasons, Hindu children only get to celebrate their birthdays until the age of 16.

4 Birthday cakes around the world come in different sizes and flavors. There are even ice cream birthday cakes today. But in China, there is no birthday cake. Friends and family go out to lunch, and to wish the birthday child a long life, they eat noodles!

WRITING SKILLS

The Paragraph

Most things you read or write are written in one or more paragraphs. To write in paragraph form, use this format.

- Use lined paper or a new document in a word processing program on a computer.
- Write your name, the date, and the course number in the upper right-hand corner of the paper.
- Write a title in the center at the top of the page. Capitalize the first letter of all the words in a title. However, do not capitalize the, a, an, or prepositions unless they begin the title or have more than four letters.
- Leave a one-inch margin on the left-hand side of the page. (Your teacher may ask you to leave a margin on the right-hand side also.) A word processing program will do this for you.
- Indent the first line of every paragraph.
- Write on every other line of the paper, or use double-spaced lines if you are using a computer.
- Capitalize the first word in each sentence, and end each sentence with a period (.), a question mark (?), or an exclamation point (!).

Gondolas go through the canals of Venice, Italy.

Venice: A CHANGING CITY

Many people think Venice is one of the most beautiful cities in the world. This unique city is in the north of Italy. It is really a group of 118 small islands. These islands have canals[1] to separate them and 400 bridges to join them. There are no cars in Venice—just boats. Everything must come to the city by boat and then be carried over the bridges to people's homes and shops.

[1] canals: long narrow stretches of water made by man for boats to travel on

2 Venice is a city on the water, but it has a problem with high tide.[2] This is not a new problem. For about 60 days a year, parts of the city are covered in water. Residents know this well. As soon as they hear the sound of the emergency alarm, they put on their boots or walk on special platforms.[3]

3 Venice is beautiful, old, and romantic. But it is changing. Just 30 years ago, 120,000 people lived there. Today, Venice has half that number. The residents are moving out, but more tourists are visiting all the time. Venice has over 20 million tourists every year! That is both good and bad.

4 Tourists bring money. But they also bring change. The old shops that sold products like fruit and vegetables to the residents are changing to souvenir shops because the rent on the old shops is too high. Old houses in the center of the city are changing to hotels. The residents of Venice are moving out because there are few houses, and they are too expensive. Only rich people, mainly from other countries, or elderly people who own houses passed down[4] from their family can live in Venice.

5 In the past, Venice's biggest problem was the high water. Now it is the number of tourists. The city is working on both of these problems. They want residents and tourists to enjoy this beautiful, old, and romantic city for all time.

2 high tide: a time when the sea is at its highest level

3 platform: a flat surface you can stand on. In Venice, the platforms have metal legs that you pull down when the water rises.

4 passed down: given from one person to another, usually in the same family, such as a parent to a child

The Comparative Form of Adjectives

We often use adjectives to compare people and things. When you compare two things that are different, use the comparative form of adjectives.

- To form the comparative, add -er to the adjective and put than after the adjective.

  EXAMPLES: Iceland is colder than Mexico.
  Mexico's population is bigger than the population of Iceland.

- If the adjective ends in one consonant and there is one vowel before it, double the consonant: big, bigger; hot, hotter.

- If the adjective ends in -e, add -r: wide, wider; fine, finer.

- If the adjective ends in -y, change -y to -i and add -er: happy, happier; easy, easier.

- When the adjective has more than two syllables, put more in front of the adjective and than after the adjective.

  EXAMPLES: Reykjavik is more expensive than Paris.
  Paris is more dangerous than Reykjavik.

EXERCISE 1

Give the number of syllables in each adjective. Then write the comparative form.

	Adjective	Syllables	Comparative Form
1.	beautiful	3	more beautiful than
2.	wet
3.	dry
4.	expensive
5.	old
6.	dangerous
7.	high
8.	large

EXERCISE 2

Complete each sentence with the comparative form of the adjective in parentheses.

6. Mexico is (dry) Canada.

7. The Taj Mahal is (beautiful) the Empire State Building.

8. Reykjavik is (expensive) Paris.

The Superlative Form of Adjectives

When you compare more than two things, use the superlative form of adjectives.

- To form the superlative, add -est to the end of the adjective.

  EXAMPLES: Reykjavik is the largest city in Iceland.
  Icelanders are the hardest workers in Europe.

- When the adjective has more than two syllables, add the most in front of the adjective.

  EXAMPLES: Reykjavik is the most expensive city in Europe.
  Reykjavik is the most popular city in Iceland.

EXERCISE 3

Complete each sentence with the superlative form of the adjective in parentheses.

1. Iceland has (small) population for its size in Europe.

e. suppose; imagine; for example
f. a person between 13 and 19 years old
g. usual, ordinary
h. not asleep

Two travelers and their dog rest on their journey in Ellesmere Island, Canada.

Go to Sleep!

Sleep is very important. Did you know that sleep is more important than food? A person who does not sleep dies at a younger age than a person who does not eat.

Let's say you go to sleep 12 hours later than you usually do. It will take your body about three weeks to return to normal. We spend about one-third (1/3) of our lives in sleep. That's about 121 days a year!

3 How much sleep do we need? We are all different. A baby needs 16 hours of sleep every day. Children 6 to 12 years old need an average of 10 to 12 hours of sleep. A teenager needs 9 to 10 hours of sleep. An adult needs an average of 7 to 8 hours a night. There are some people who need only 3 hours of sleep. Others need 10 hours of sleep. After the age of 50, the average sleep time goes down to 6.5 hours a night. We need less sleep as we get older.

4 Most people have some nights when they cannot sleep. About one in three Americans has a problem with sleep. Many of these people cannot fall asleep or stay asleep. The name of this problem is insomnia. The word insomnia means "no sleep." Some people say, "I didn't sleep all night." They may sleep lightly and wake up several times. In the morning, they only remember the times they were awake, so they think they were awake all night.

5 This is not a new problem. Many famous people in history had insomnia. Some of these people had special ideas to make them sleep. Benjamin Franklin, the famous statesman[1] and inventor, had four beds. He moved from one to the other to fall asleep. King Louis XIV of France had 413 beds and hoped to fall asleep in one of them. Mark Twain, the famous American writer, had a different way. He lay on his side across the end of the bed!

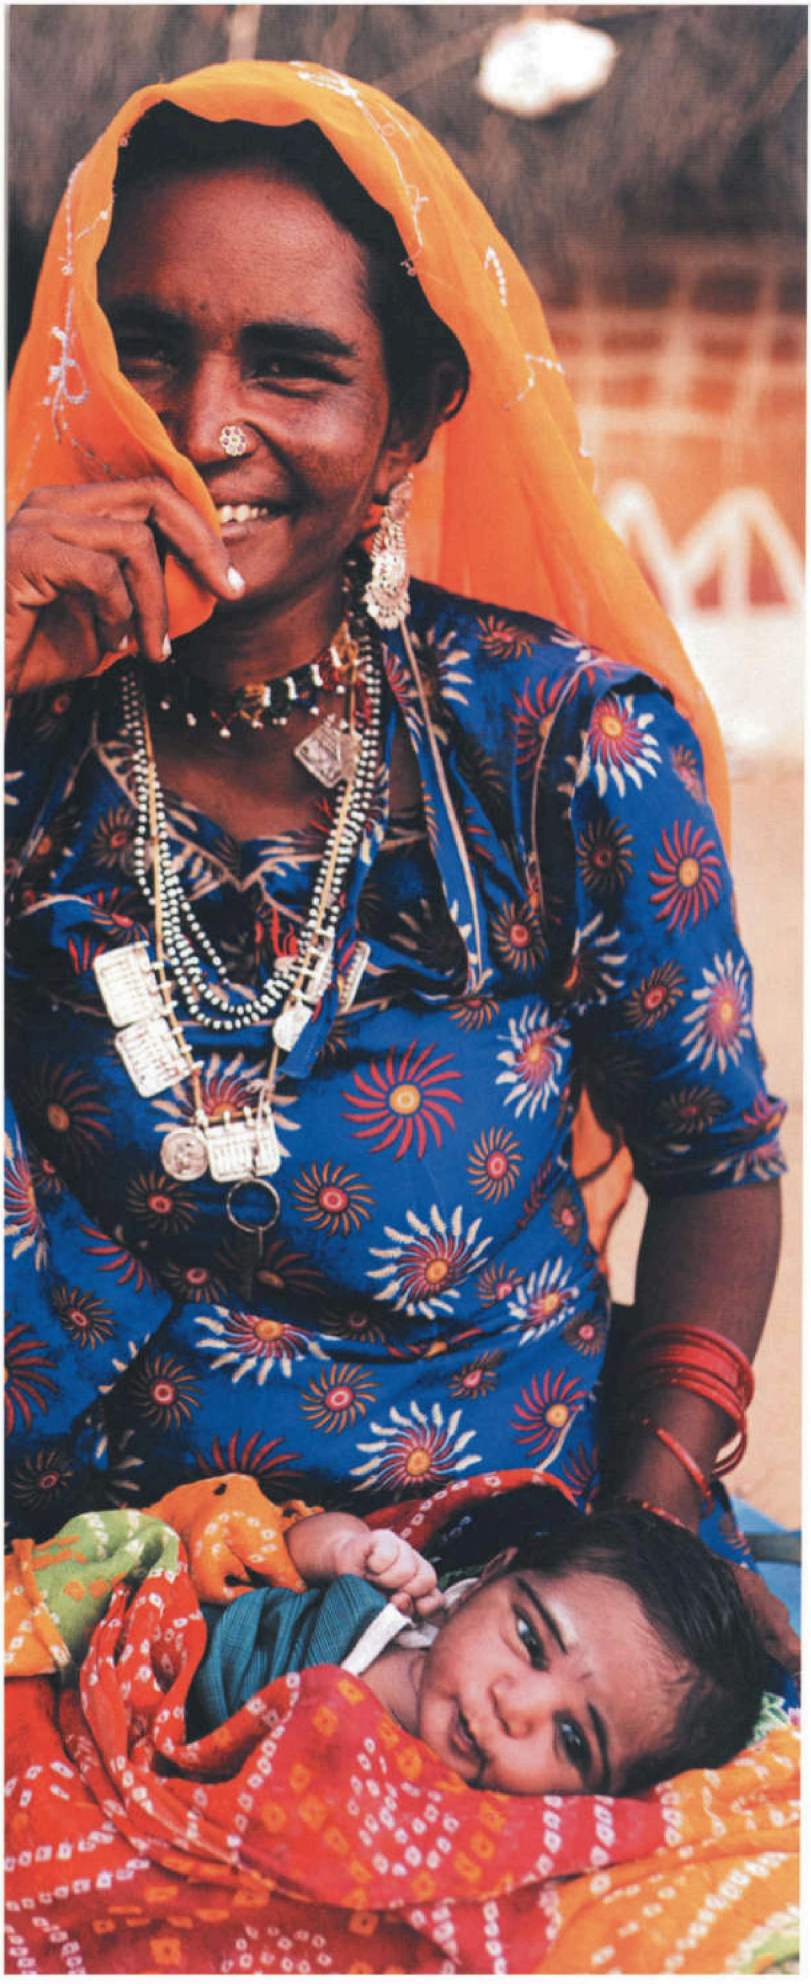
An Indian woman with her new baby



What to Name the Baby

About one billion people live in India. Most of these people belong to the Hindu religion, which is also a way of life.[1] In the Hindu religion, there are special ceremonies for important times in a person's life. There are 16 ceremonies in all. For each ceremony there is a special fire, and priests say prayers and read from a special book. One of these ceremonies is choosing a name for a baby.

The birth of a baby is a happy time in a Hindu family. Soon after the baby is born, the parents wash the baby and write the word om on the baby's tongue. They write the word in honey with a pen of gold. Om is a special word in the Hindu religion. Hindus say this word over and over again when they are praying.

Twelve days after the baby is born, a priest visits the family to name the baby. The priest makes a horoscope for the baby. To make this horoscope, the priest writes down where the stars and planets were at the time the baby was born. From this, he reads the baby's future and suggests a good name for the baby. Many children have names of Hindu gods and goddesses or have names with other religious meanings.

4 At the ceremony, there are guests. The mother holds the baby. The father is on one side. In front of them, there is a plate with rice on it. The father uses a long, thin piece of gold to write the name of the family god, the baby's name, and the date of birth on the plate of rice. Then he says the baby's name in the baby's right ear. The priest then blesses the baby. He also blesses the candies and food that are given to the guests. This ends the ceremony of giving a name to a baby.

_____	8. at the middle	h.	say something strongly

Eat, Drink, and Know the Customs

1 Table customs are different around the world. If you go to Thailand, this information will help you.

2 In Thailand, people do not eat with chopsticks, like in China, Japan, and Korea. They use spoons and forks. They never use knives. Most food is already cut. If you need to cut things, use the side of your spoon first and then use your fork. The spoon is more important than the fork. If you are right-handed, keep the spoon in your right hand and the fork in your left hand.

People usually have rice in a separate bowl. The rice is not on the same plate with the other food. It is not necessary to finish all your rice or all your food. It is good to leave a little on your plate. If you eat everything, it means you want more.

People always offer you more food. The host will ask you two or three times if you want more food. First, you must say no. Then the host insists again, and you must say no again. The host insists a third time, and you finally say yes and take a little. If you really don't want any more, take very little and leave it on your plate. It is the same with whatever you are drinking. During the meal, never empty your cup or glass. When it is less than half full, your host or neighbor will refill it. Never refill your own glass. Always refill your neighbor's glass. This means that you must keep an eye on your neighbor's glass all through the meal.

The most important place at a table is at the middle. An important guest will sit at the middle of the table on one side, and the host will sit at the middle of the table on the other side. This may be confusing when the table is round, but the Thai get it right somehow.

Buddhist monks enjoy a meal together in Bangkok, Thailand.

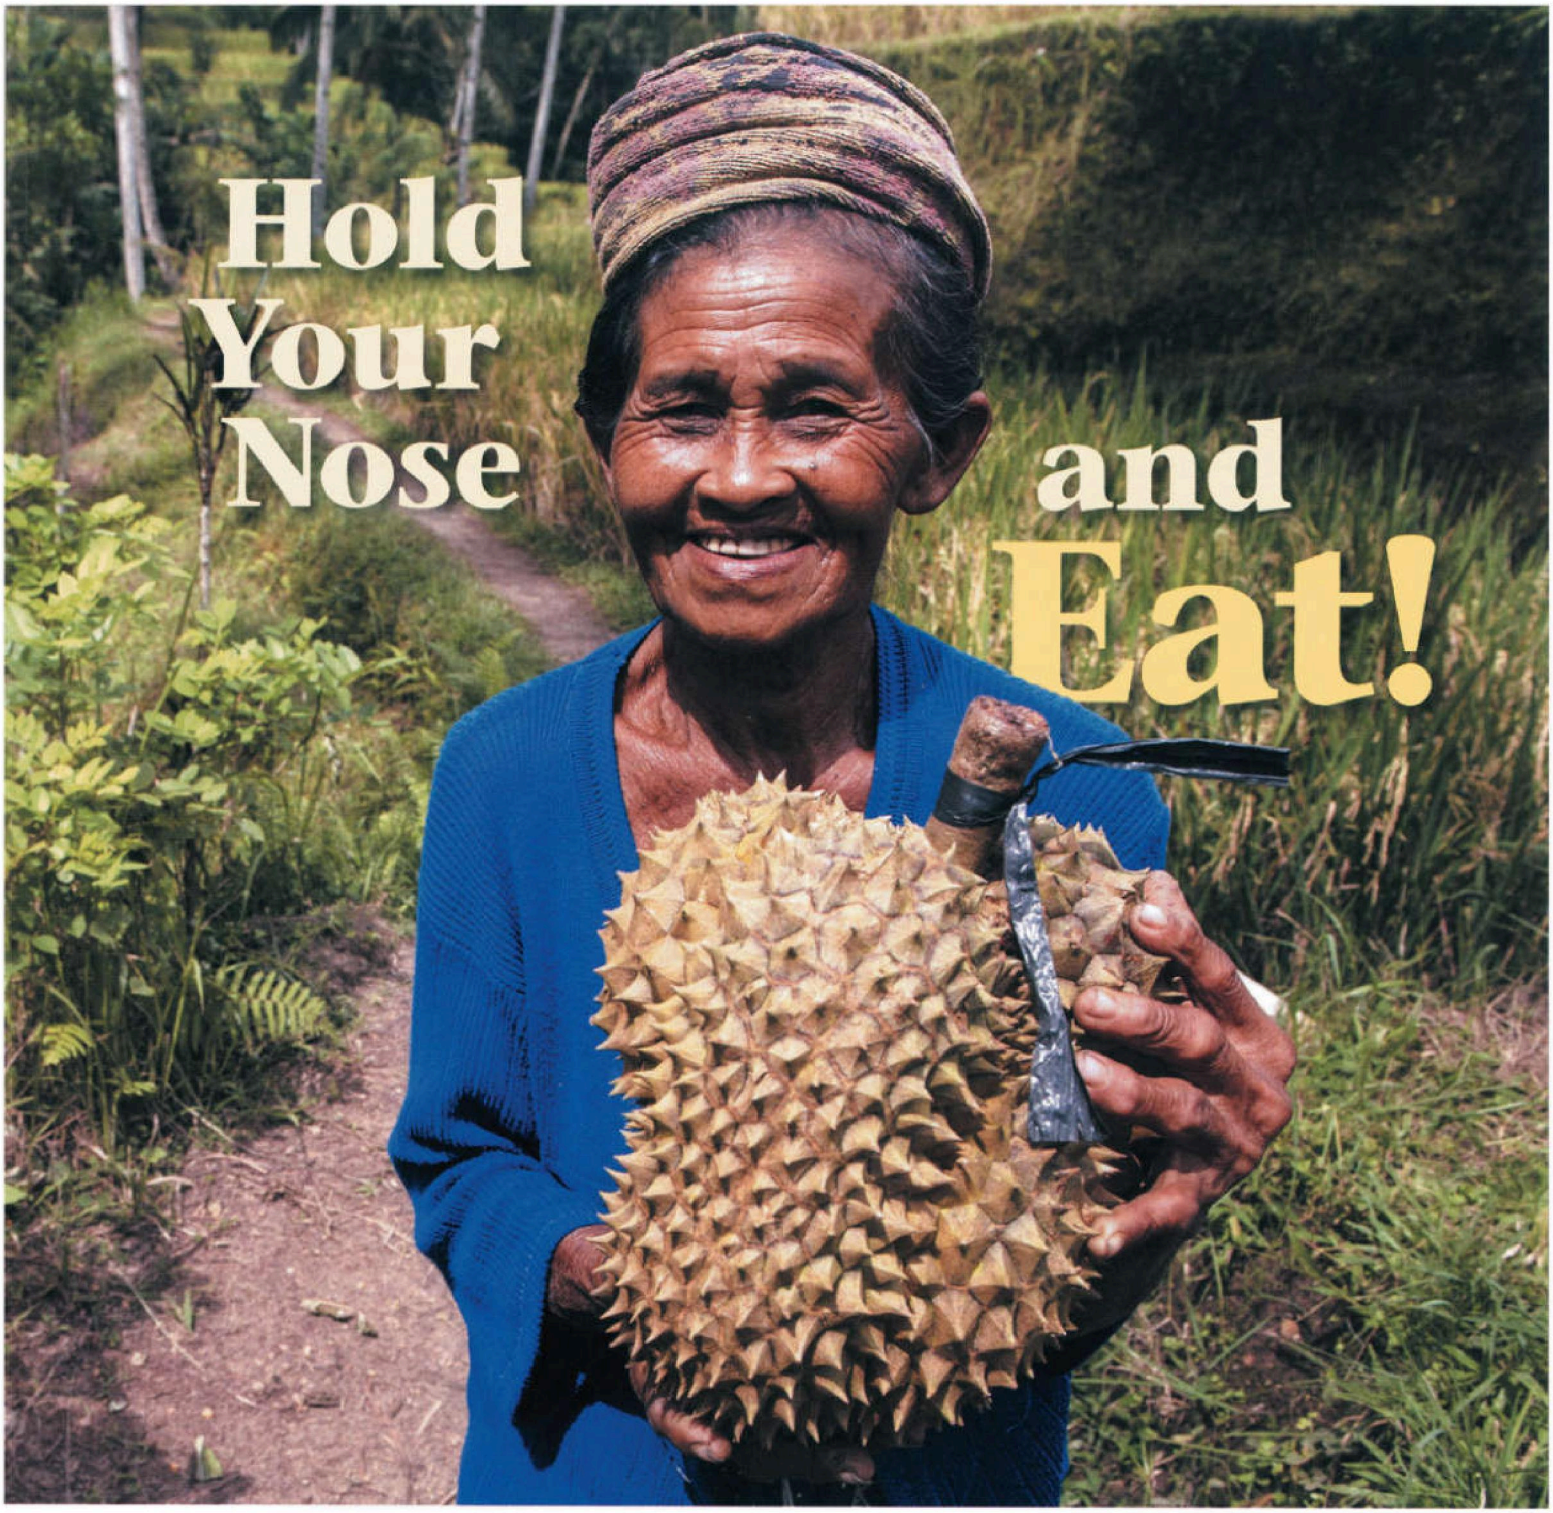
h. very bad

A woman in Bali, Indonesia, holds up a durian that she is selling.



Hold Your Nose and Eat!

What can smell like dirty socks but can also taste great? The durian! The durian is a fruit from Southeast Asia. It is very popular in countries like Malaysia, Indonesia, and Thailand, where people call it the "king of fruits." However, the durian is also famous for its terrible smell. The smell is like very dirty socks or strong French cheese. People eat the inside of the fruit, which is soft and creamy but tastes like rotten[1] onions. People either love it or hate it.

[1] rotten: a food, wood, or another item that has become bad and can no longer be used

2 It takes the durian fruit four or five years to grow on a durian tree. One fruit can weigh up to seven pounds (over three kilograms). It looks like a spiky[2] ball and is difficult to hold in your hands. In the summer, when the durian is ready to eat, you can smell it in the air. In countries like Malaysia and Borneo, one durian can sometimes sell for about 50 U.S. dollars!

3 Many Asian countries do not allow the durian in taxis, buses, trains, planes, elevators, stores, or hotels because of its smell. In hotels, the staff[3] watch their guests carefully to see if they are carrying a durian to their room because when the durian smell gets into a room, it is very difficult to get it out. So, don't leave one in your car!

4 Thailand produces the most durians. Because the fruit is so popular, there is a nine-day festival for it there. At the festival, there are different kinds of durian fruit, durian eating competitions, and even durian drinks and durian chips.

5 If you want to try a durian, you can follow these steps: First, cut a hole into the durian with a knife. Next, with your fingers, pull the durian open into two halves. Then take out the soft inside part of each half. Finally, eat it with your hands, but be careful of the seeds. Hold your nose and enjoy!

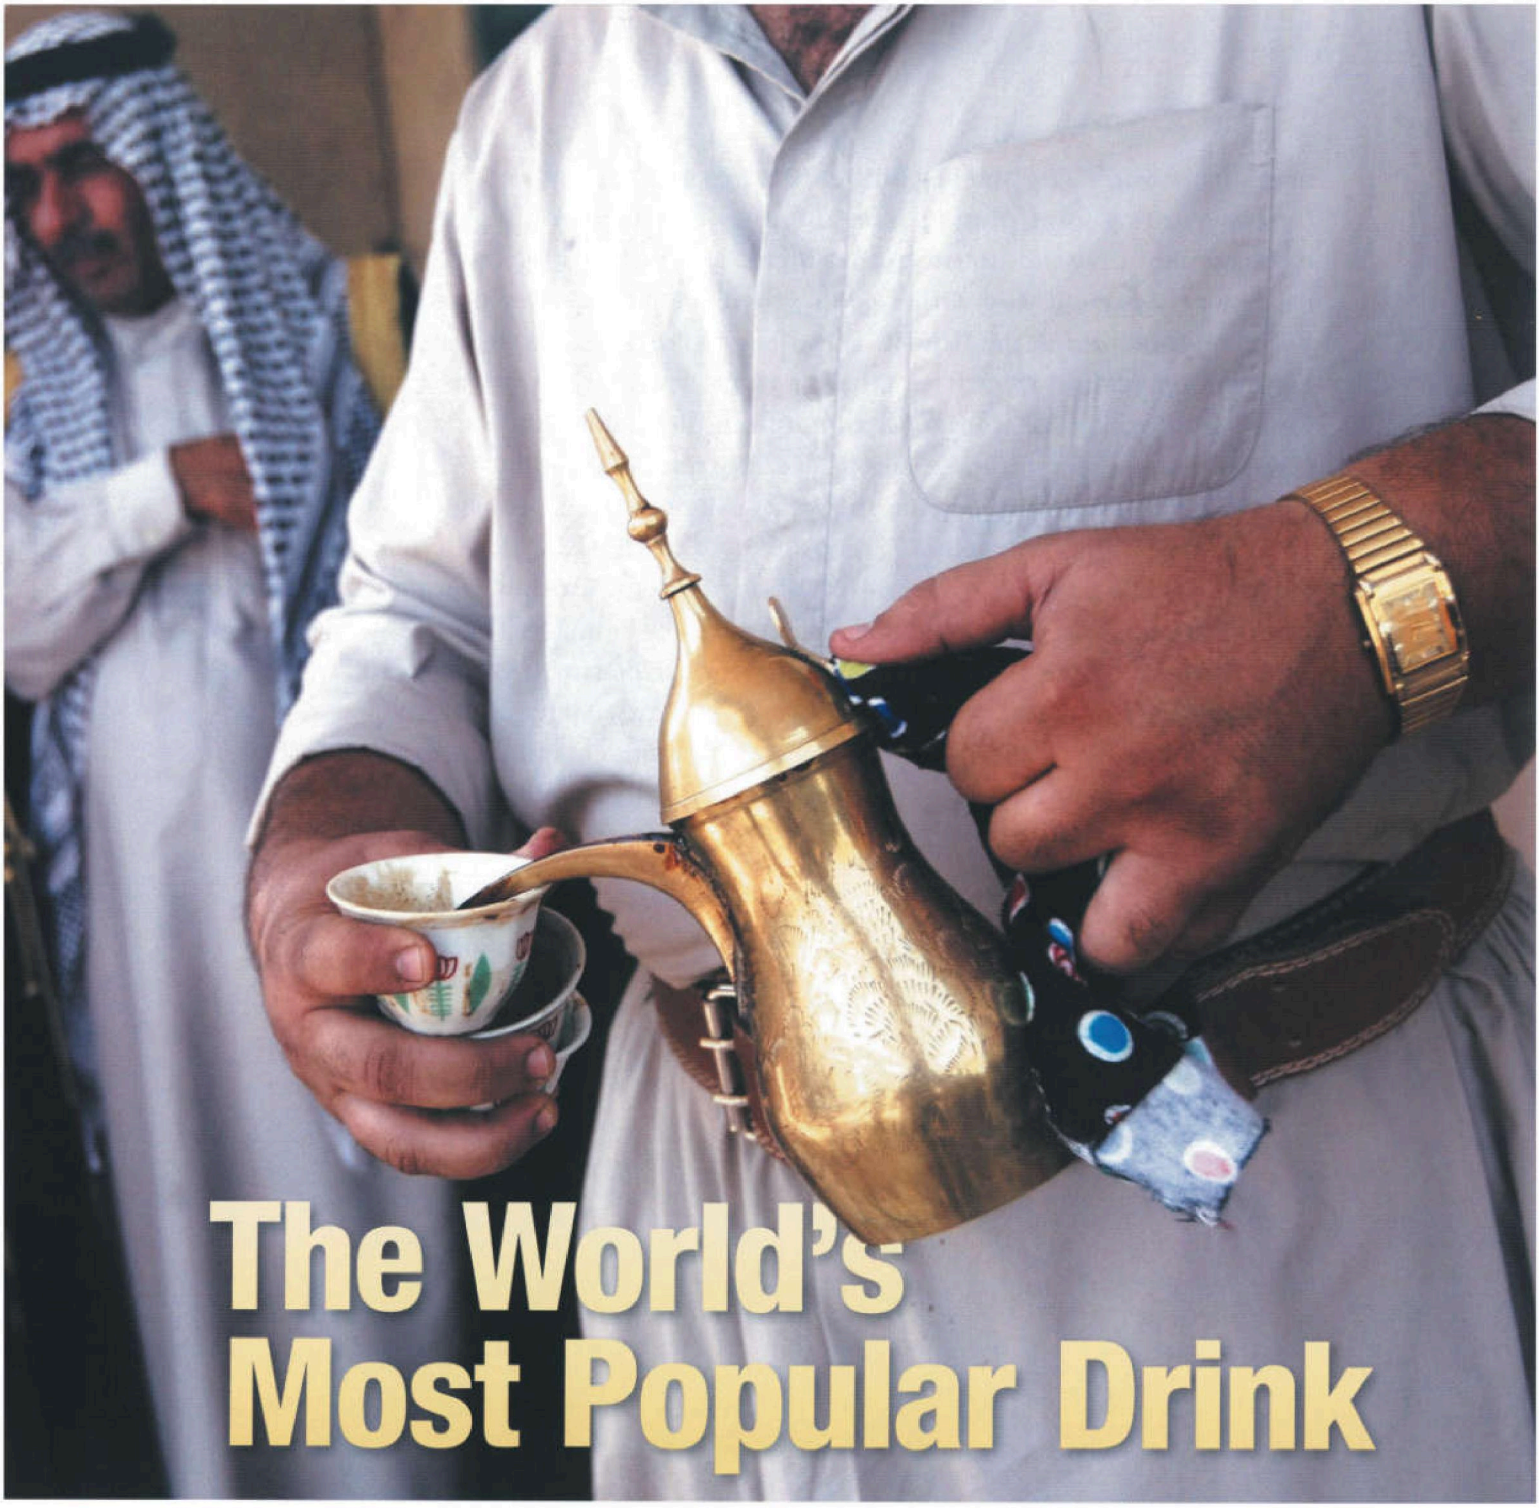
An Iraqi man pours traditional Arabic coffee in Bagdad, Iraq.



The World's Most Popular Drink

1 People all over the world drink coffee. It is the world's most popular drink. The French call it café, the Germans Kaffee, the Japanese koohi, the Turkish kahve. But the people of Sweden drink the most coffee—more than five cups a day. Over half of American adults drink it every day, but not as much as in Sweden. Too much coffee is bad for your health.

2 We don't know who really discovered coffee. There is one story about a man who discovered coffee in Ethiopia, a country in Africa, around the year 700. The man's name was Kaldi, and he took care of goats. One day, he watched them while they were eating some plants. Soon after they ate the plants, the goats became very excited, and they did not sleep that night. Kaldi tried the plants himself, and he became very excited, too. Other people tried the plants. They decided to boil the plants and then drink the liquid. They, too, couldn't sleep well at night. This drink became popular and went from Ethiopia to Arabia. By 1200, it was a popular drink in the Arab world. The word coffee comes from the Arabic word qahwah. Coffee then traveled from Arabia to Turkey, Europe, and the rest of the world.

3 Coffee has been very popular in history. Many famous people loved coffee. The French writer Voltaire needed 72 cups every day. In 1735, the German musician Johann Sebastian Bach wrote music about coffee. Another German musician, Beethoven, counted 60 beans for each cup of coffee he made. That was strong!

4 There are coffee shops and coffee bars all over North America today. They serve all kinds of coffee in different sizes and flavors. Many coffee shops also give customers free Wi-Fi. In fact, it is not unusual for students to go into a coffee shop, buy one cup of coffee, and then sit for hours with their laptops writing their papers and surfing the Web.

Dinner Fresh from the Freezer

Clarence Birdseye
(1886–1956)

1 You need to make dinner, but don't have any fresh vegetables. So you go to the freezer and take out some frozen ones. When you have dinner, the taste of the vegetables is fresh and delicious. You can thank Clarence Birdseye for that. Clarence Birdseye invented a way for us to have frozen food in convenient packages.

2 Clarence Birdseye was born in 1886 in Brooklyn, New York. He was one of eight children. He loved nature and animals. Later, he started to study biology at college. He didn't finish college and started to work to make money. In many jobs around the country, he worked with animals and nature.

3 In 1912, Birdseye went to the north of Canada. He liked it there and bought and sold fur. He also took his new wife and baby son there. They lived in a cabin 250 miles (402 kilometers) away from the nearest doctor. He often traveled with the local Inuit[1] people, and he went fishing with them. As soon as one of them caught a fish, it quickly froze because the air was so cold. He asked them, "Are we going to eat this fish today?" The Inuit replied, "No, we already have fish for one month." Birdseye didn't understand. How could fish stay for a month and not go bad? Later, when he ate the frozen fish, it was as delicious as the fresh fish. Then he understood! When you freeze fish fast enough, it doesn't change its taste or the way it looks. He tried this new idea on vegetables. He froze cabbage so his family could eat vegetables in the winter.

4 In 1917, Birdseye returned to the United States and took different jobs. In the end, he worked for a fish company and started to try out the quick-freezing method he learned in Canada. Finally, in 1924, he started a company called Birdseye Seafoods. It sold frozen foods such as fish, meat, and vegetables. In 1930, he tested the foods in Springfield, Massachusetts. For the first time, shoppers saw frozen foods in their grocery store. Did they buy them? Yes, they did! And what a change Birdseye made to the American diet, all because of his curiosity.

A Sharp Idea from King Gillette

American inventor, King Camp Gillette (1855–1932)

1 A salesman named King Camp Gillette invented a disposable razor blade. His invention became a household name. It changed the way people shave all over the world to this day.

2 King Camp Gillette was born in a small town in the state of Wisconsin in the United States. When he was young, his family moved to Chicago. The family worked hard. His father worked at various inventions. Gillette always liked the idea of inventing something, too. At 18, he left school and worked as a salesman.

3 By age 40, Gillette was still a salesman. Both his parents were more successful than he was. His mother published the famous White House Cookbook, and his father had a few inventions. The younger Gillette worked hard and also wanted to be an inventor. The president of the company he worked for encouraged him. He told him to invent something people could use and throw away. Gillette often thought about this.

4 One day when Gillette was ready to shave, his razor blade was too dull. It didn't cut. He thought, "I just spend so much time sharpening this blade. Then when I sharpen it, it's too sharp and I cut myself." He decided, "I'll make a razor with a safe, removable blade. When the blade is dull, you can throw it away and buy another blade."

5 Gillette started to work on this idea. Another inventor named William Emery Nickerson helped him. They became partners. Five years later, they started a company called the American Safety Razor Company. A year later, Gillette renamed the company the Gillette Safety Razor Company. In 1903, the company sold 51 razors and 168 blades. The next year it sold 90,884 razors and 123,648 blades. This was because Gillette had a good product and a good idea. He knew how to advertise. He gave away razors for free to sell more blades. Other companies tried to copy Gillette's product, but the Gillette Safety Razor Company became the most popular company.

6 By age 55, Gillette was a millionaire. He was famous, too, because his picture was on every package of razors. People all over the world asked for razors with the picture of a man on them. Gillette once said, "In my travels, I have found it in the most northern town in Norway and in the heart of the Sahara Desert." Sadly, in 1929, the U.S. Stock Market crashed,[1] and Gillette lost his money. He died a few years later.

WRITING ■ 2

WRITING SKILLS

Using too and very with Adjectives

- Very goes before an adjective. It makes the adjective stronger.

  EXAMPLE: Gillette had a very good idea.

- You must not confuse very with too. When too goes before an adjective, it gives the idea of "more than necessary." Too has a negative meaning.

  EXAMPLES: That razor blade is too sharp. (I don't like it.)
  That razor blade is very sharp. It works well. (I like it.)

- Two Meanings of too

  Too changes its meaning with the position it has in a sentence. Before an adjective, it has a negative meaning.

  EXAMPLE: This electric razor is too noisy. (I don't like it.)

  At the end of a positive sentence, too means "also."

  EXAMPLE: An electric razor is heavy, too. (It is heavy also.)

- You should use a comma before too when it means "also."

EXERCISE 1

Complete these sentences with too or very.

1. This razor is _____ good. I like it.
2. I don't like this razor. It's _____ expensive for me.
3. He likes a strong aftershave. This is _____ weak for him.
4. After he showers and shaves, he looks _____ clean.
5. This aftershave is _____ expensive. I can never buy it.
6. I like electric razors. They are _____ convenient.

EXERCISE 2

Rewrite the second sentence in each pair, using too in the correct place.

1. I don't like this aftershave. It is stronger than necessary.

   EXAMPLE: It is too strong.

2. That aftershave is expensive. It also has a strong smell.

3. That toothpaste is good for your teeth. It also makes teeth whiter.

4. I didn't buy that toothbrush. It is more expensive than necessary.

5. This shampoo makes my hair soft. It also makes my hair shiny.

6. I don't use that shampoo. It has more chemicals than necessary.

EXERCISE 3

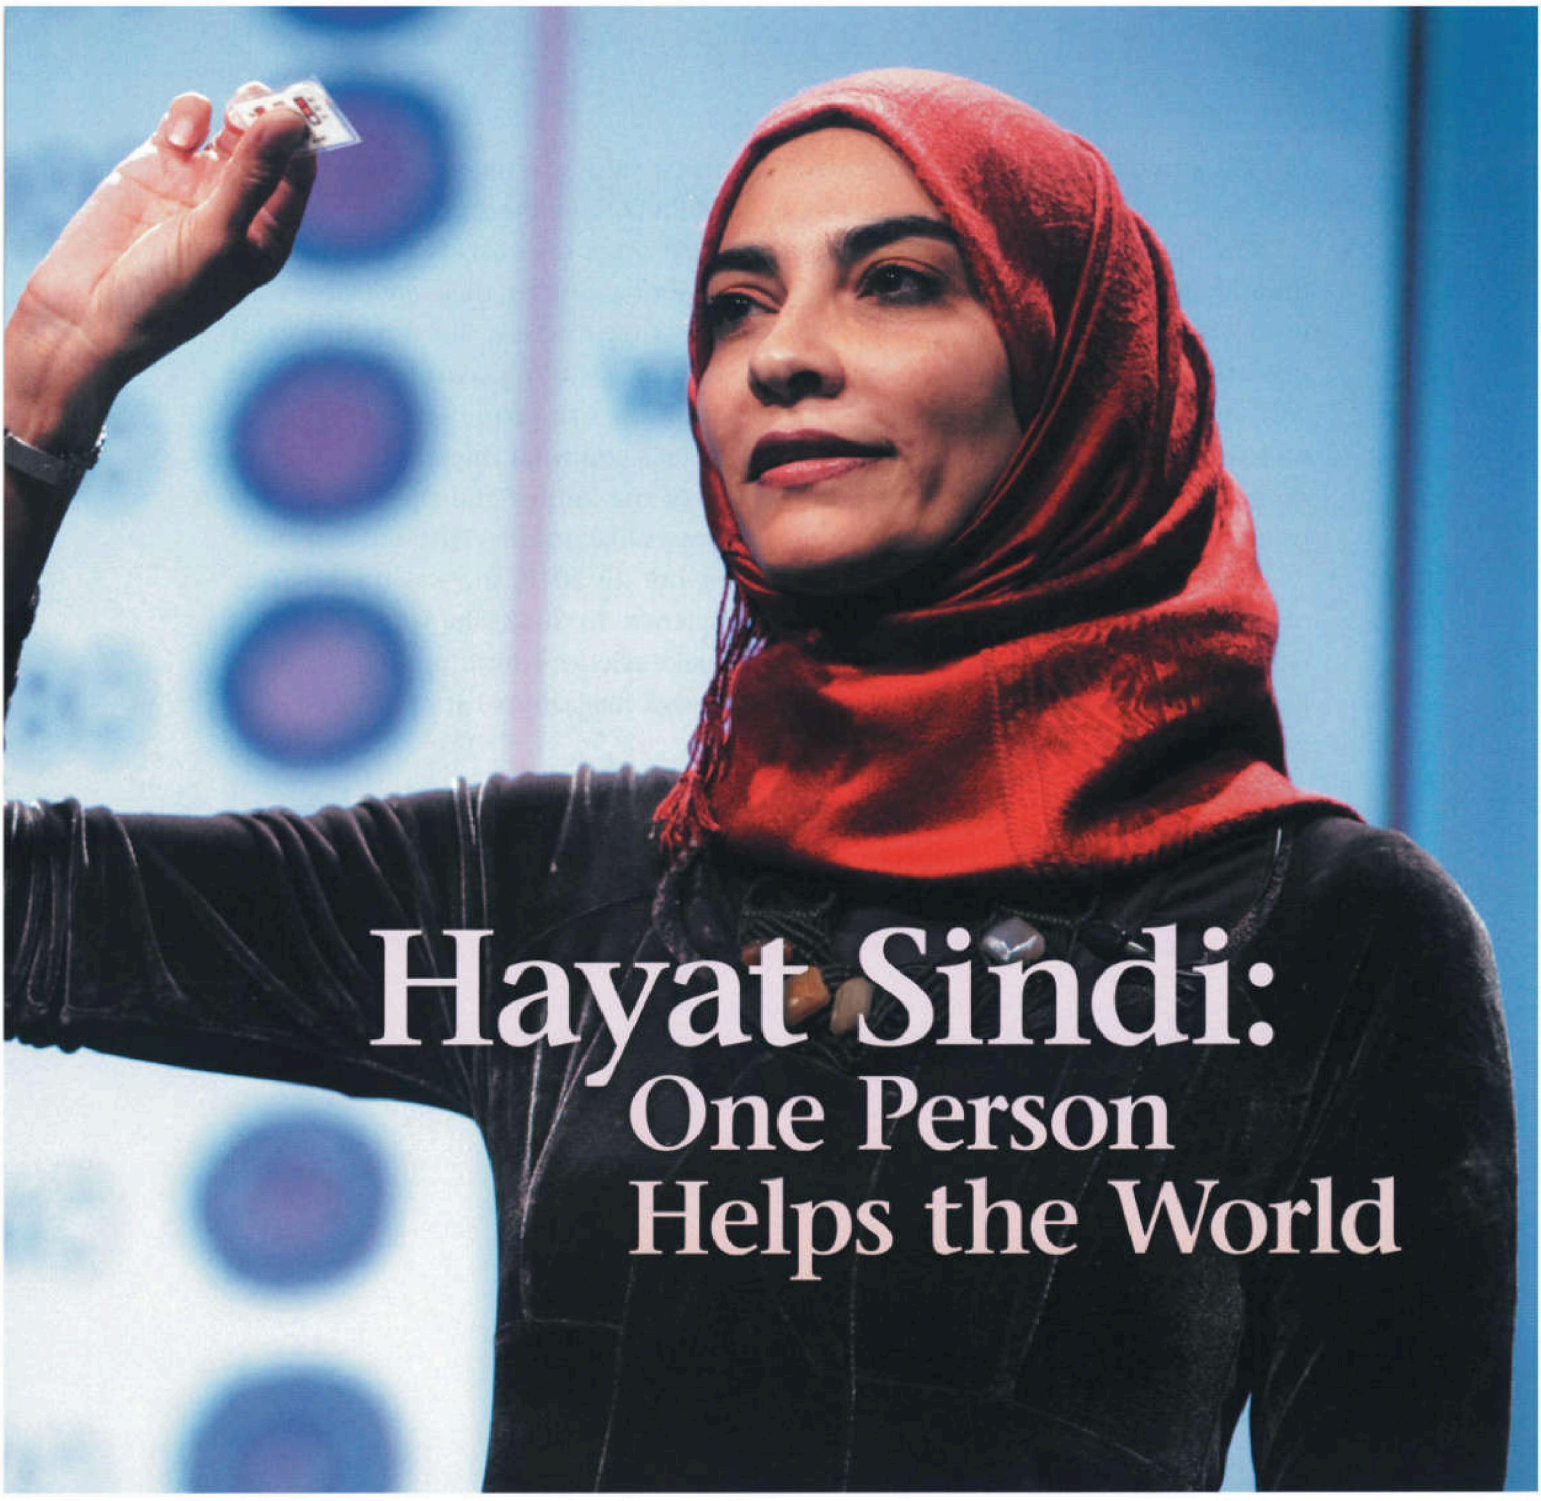
Medical researcher, Hayat Sindi



Hayat Sindi: One Person Helps the World

1 Hayat Sindi is on National Geographic's list of 14 people who can make the world a better place. She is a medical scientist who helped make an invention that can save the lives of millions of people in poor countries.

2 Sindi was born in Makkah, Saudi Arabia, and she is one of eight children. After she finished high school, she told her parents she wanted to go to England to study, and they agreed. First, she worked hard to learn English and then passed her exams to enter a university. Finally, she entered King's College in London. She graduated in 1995 and then attended Cambridge University. Sindi was the first Saudi Arabian woman to enter Cambridge and the first to get a Ph.D.[1] in biotechnology.[2]

3 The invention that Sindi helped to make with other scientists is a quick way of finding out if a person has a certain disease. In poor countries, there are places with no doctors or hospitals. People don't know why they are sick. But now this great invention can help them. It is a piece of paper the size of a postage stamp and costs only a penny.[3] You put a drop of blood from the sick person on the paper and wait for a minute. The paper changes color and tells you what the problem is. Right now, this invention works on certain diseases of the kidney and the liver. In the future, this invention may be used for other diseases like malaria, HIV, and diabetes.

4 Sindi helps the whole world through her work. In 2010, she was the winner of the Prince Khalid Award for her work in science. In 2012, she was a UNESCO Goodwill Ambassador because she helped to make science education important for girls in the Middle East. Also, she was on Newsweek magazine's list of "150 Women Who Shake the World."

5 In 2009, Hayat Sindi was working at Harvard University when U.S. president Barack Obama chose her and four other scientists to make a film that shows how important science education is for young people.

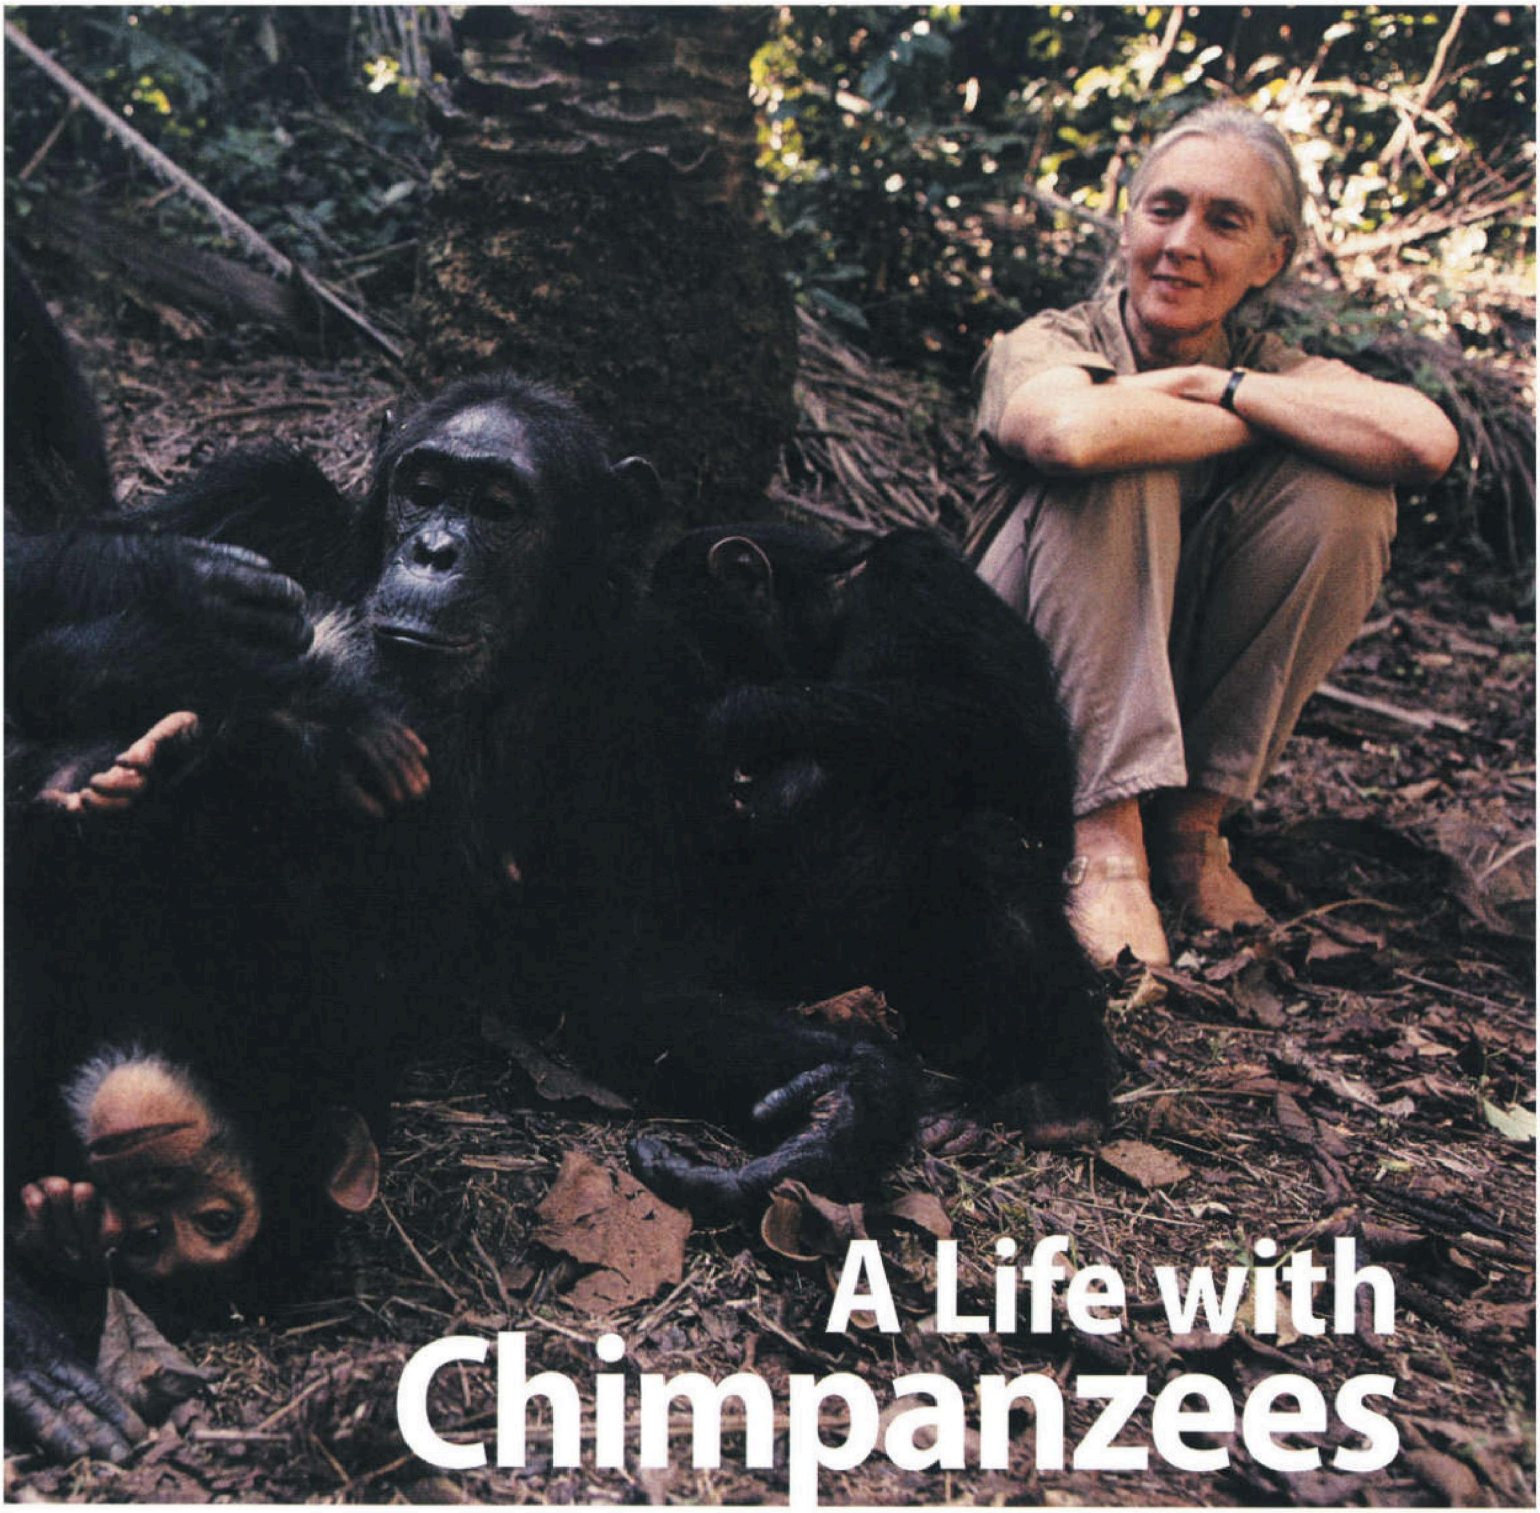
Jane Goodall watches chimps play in Gombe Stream National Park, Tanzania.



A Life with Chimpanzees

1 Jane Goodall was born in 1934 in London, England. When she was a child, she loved to play with animals. She loved to read stories about Africa and wanted to go there one day.

2 In 1957, Goodall went on a trip to Kenya in Africa. There she met the anthropologist[1] Dr. Louis Leakey. Leakey wanted to study chimpanzees because they are like humans in many ways. Goodall was very interested. She had no college education or experience, but she was patient and had a strong desire to understand animals. So Leakey chose Goodall to study chimpanzees for him. Goodall went back to England and made plans to return to Africa.

[1] anthropologist: a person who studies humans and their cultures

3 In July 1960, Goodall arrived at the Gombe Stream Reserve in what is today Tanzania, Africa. She didn't know anything about chimpanzees. In fact, most people didn't know much about chimpanzees at that time. Goodall spent months alone in the forest with the chimpanzees. It was not easy. Every day she walked through the forest and climbed mountains looking for chimpanzees. When she found them, she sat for hours and watched them. Soon she discovered things people didn't know. Chimpanzees make tools and use them just like humans. Chimpanzees eat fruit and nuts, but they can also kill large animals and eat them. They even kill each other! After five years, National Geographic made a film about Jane Goodall. There were also many articles about her and the chimpanzees in the National Geographic magazine. Soon she became famous.

4 In 1962, Leakey arranged for Goodall to study at Cambridge University. In 1965, she received a Ph.D. in the study of animals. She returned to Tanzania and continued her work. In 1977, she started the Jane Goodall Institute to find out more about chimpanzees and the environment. After 25 years in Africa, Goodall discovered that there were fewer and fewer chimpanzees. She thought the best way to save them was to tell the world about them. She wrote books and articles. In 1991, she started Roots & Shoots, a program for children around the world to help people, animals, and the environment. Eleven years later, the United Nations named her Messenger of Peace. Today, she travels the world and talks about chimpanzees and how we can help animals, people, and our earth.

Writing about Someone's Life

Junko Tabei

When we write about someone's life, we usually start by making a list of the events in the person's life. We start from the time the person was born and continue through his or her life. On the left side of the list, we write the year that each event happened. We start a new line for each new year or new event.

The following is a list of events in the life of Junko Tabei, the first woman to reach the top of Mount Everest. Note that most of the events are written in the past tense, but today's event is written in the present tense.

The Story of Junko Tabei

1939	Junko was born in a small town in the north of Japan. She was a thin, weak child.
1949	Junko went on a school trip and climbed two mountains.
1962	Junko graduated from Showa Women's University in Tokyo.
1966	She married a well-known Japanese mountain climber, Masanobu Tabei.
1972	People said that Junko was the best mountain climber in Japan. She was chosen to lead a team of women to climb Mount Everest. She gave birth to a daughter.
1975	Junko reached the summit of Mount Everest.
1992	She became the first woman to reach the summits of the highest mountains on the seven continents.
Today	Junko works with organizations to preserve mountain environments.

EXERCISE 1

Make a list of the events in your life on a separate piece of paper. Follow the example on page 146. Put the year of each event in the left-hand column and write complete sentences.

Different Ways of Expressing Time

When writing about someone's life, not all of the sentences about the person should begin with a date, for example, In 1960, In 1966. There are many different ways of expressing time.

EXAMPLES: In 1960, Goodall arrived at the Gombe Stream Reserve.
When Goodall was 26, she arrived at the Gombe Stream Reserve.
At age 26, she arrived at the Gombe Stream Reserve.
Six years later, Goodall received her Ph.D. (Six years after she arrived at the Gombe Stream Reserve.)

EXERCISE 2

Replace the underlined in + date phrases in the paragraph below with the different ways of expressing time (When she was . . . , At age 00 . . . , 00 years later, . . .). One example is done for you.

In 1934, Jane Goodall was born in London, England. As a child, she dreamed about traveling to Africa and working with animals. When she was 23 In 1957, Goodall went on a trip to Kenya and met Dr. Louis Leakey. He chose Goodall to study chimpanzees for him. Then she went back to England for a while and prepared for her new job. In 1960, Goodall arrived at the Gombe Stream Reserve in what is today Tanzania. There she studied chimpanzees in the wild. In 1962, Leakey sent Goodall to Cambridge University. In 1965, she received a Ph.D. in the study of animals. Later, Goodall returned to Tanzania and continued her work there. In 1977, she started the Jane Goodall Institute. To help the chimpanzees and other animals, Goodall gives speeches and writes books and articles. In 2002, the United Nations named her Messenger of Peace.

EXERCISE 3

There are 10 mistakes in grammar and capitalization below. Find the mistakes and correct them.

Wild Chimpanzees lives only in africa. We find them in 21 country in Africa. These country are mostly in the Center of Africa where there is rainforests. In these rainforest, Chimpanzees can live to be 50 year old.

WRITING PRACTICE

REWRITE IN PARAGRAPH FORM

A Rewrite the sentences about your life (see Exercise 1 on page 147) in the form of a paragraph.

B Rewrite your paragraph again. This time start only one sentence with in + year. Instead, use other words and phrases with the same meaning. Then use the paragraph checklist to check your work.

Paragraph Checklist

- ☐ Did you indent the first line?
- ☐ Did you give your paragraph a title?
- ☐ Did you write the title with a capital letter or letters?
- ☐ Did you put the title in the center at the top of the page?
- ☐ Did you write on every other line or double-space on a computer?

EDIT YOUR PARAGRAPH

Work with a partner or your teacher to edit your sentences. Check the spelling, punctuation, vocabulary, and grammar. Use the editing checklist to help you.

Editing Checklist

- ☐ Subject in every sentence?
- ☐ Verb in every sentence?
- ☐ Words in correct order?
- ☐ Sentences begin with a capital letter?
- ☐ Sentences end with a period, a question mark, or an exclamation point directly at the end of a sentence?
- ☐ Sentences have a space between them?
- ☐ Commas in the correct place?
- ☐ Wrong words?
- ☐ Spelling?
- ☐ Missing words (use insertion mark: ∧)?

WRITE YOUR FINAL COPY

After you edit your paragraph, you can write your final copy.

Weaving It Together

TIMED WRITING

The Shepherd's Boy

This reading is one of Aesop's fables. Aesop was an African slave. He went to Greece around the year 600 BCE and wrote 350 stories for adults that teach lessons about life.

There was once a young Shepherd's[1] Boy who tended[2] his sheep at the foot of a mountain near a dark forest. It was rather lonely for him all day, so he thought of a plan to get a little company and some excitement. He rushed down toward the village, calling out, "Wolf! Wolf!" and the villagers came out to help him. Some of them stayed with him for a little while. This pleased the boy so much that a few days later he tried the same trick, and again the villagers came to help him. But shortly after this, a Wolf actually did come out from the forest and began to scare the sheep. The boy of course cried out, "Wolf! Wolf!" still louder than before. But this time the villagers, who had been fooled before, thought the boy was again deceiving them. Nobody came to his help. So the Wolf ate the sheep from the boy's flock,[3] and when the boy complained, the wise man of the village said, "It is your own fault if, after so often taking your lie for a truth, we at last took your truth for a lie."
